THE HOODOO IS BROKEN

KANSAS CITY WINS A SUNDAY GAME FROM THE HOOSIERS.

Rip Engan, as Usual, Pitches Winning Ball-Plenty of Exciting and Brilliant Features-Attendance, 6,500.

Yesterday was a memorable day for the Kansas City Blues. The ancient and persistent hoodoo which has dampened the home team's Sunday arder for so long a time was effectually dispelled, and the organization which became the victim was none other than the much vaunted Indianapolis team. Spurred on by the glad acclaim of 6,500 justy throats, Jimmie Manning's company of expert ball tossers secured their sixth victory from the league leaders, the pennant winners of last year, variously known as the Indians, the Reds, the Indianatis, and the Brush farmers, headed by Shortstop-Manager Robert Allen, formerly of Philadelphia, Rip did it; he smashed the hoodoo-warped its baleful influence into a groun of anguish that settled like a murky cloud on the soul of "Shorty" Motz. Farewell to the "evil eye;" au revoir to the hoodoo. The score was 5 to 3.

The score was 5 to 2.

Eagan had the Indians "on his string" just as he had them a few days ago and just as he has had the Brewers and the ligers within the past two weeks. It was Foreman's turn to pitch, but Hawley, the clongated bundle of joints who thrives on the reputation of the other pitcher of the same name, was put in the box in the hope that he might repeat his work of last Thursday, but the Blues hopped onto him in the first inning and won. In the eighth inning Hawley gave way to Hoffmenster. inning Hawley gave way to Hoffmeister at the bat and "Big Bill" Phillips went in to pitch out the game. The Blues took one run from him just as an evidence that he is not the old time proposition of last weason.

in to pitch out the game. The Blues took one run from him just as an evidence that he is not the old time proposition of last season.

Kansas City secureed a great start in the first inning with a lead of four runs made off but two hits, thre of the Reds kindly consenting to throw in errors of a luminous saffron color. Indianapolis was blankety-blanked until the sixth, when they bunched two singles and two doubles on Rip Eagan and took three men around the course. Nobody scored again until the occasion of Bill Philips' first appearance when little Conny and little Jimmie Williams gave him a hearty reception and added to the home team's lead.

The game was chock full of exciting and brilliant features. Frank Connaughton's clean handling of Motz' swift grounder to the right of second base in the eighth inning was the prettiest play of the game. Farke Wilson made a beautiful catch of a foul fly near the bleachers about midway between the pitcher's and first base territory. Harry O'Hagan's hand was injured when he made a slide to second base, Stewart unintentionally stepping upon it. His fingers were cut by the spikes and he had to wear a handkerchief around them during the rest of the game, but the injury will not keep him from playing to-day. There was a good deal of kicking at Umpire Mannassau after close decisions, Manager Allen and Kahoe raising particularly strong objections, to the injury of the Indianapolis pocketbook.

Kansas City scored first in the first inning. Slagle gained life on Stewart's criminal mbes of his little pop-up. Connaughton walked. Manager Allen allowed Williams' easy turf-grazer to pass him, and, with the bases full. Wilson hit safely into left field, scoring two, Williams advancing to third when Deady juggled the ball. O'Hagan hit for a bag and was thrown out at second on Gear's fielder's choice, Williams seoring on the hit and Wilson on the second base play.

The Indians saw their first and last light in the sixth inning. McFarland found Eagan for a bag and Kahoe touched for a double, HOGRIEVER WAS VERY WARM. The Indian Right Fielder Objected to One of Mannassau's Decisions and Threatened to Whip Him.

Right Fielder Hogriever, of the Indians, and Umpire Mannassau nearly came to blows in a discussion on the ball grounds after the game yesterday and for a few ents excitement was high among the moments excitement was high among the crowd which followed the couple and offered to lend assistance to the umpire in case he was unable to protect himself against the player. Hogriever objected to one of Mannassau's decisions and gave the official a rather severe tongue lashing.

The decision which incited the fielder to wrath was made in the last inning. "Hoggie" sent a swift liner down the right held foul line, the ball striking the ground not more than two feet outside of bounds. Mannassau, of course, called it a foul and the player uttered an emphatic protest, in which he was joined by Manager Alien. Under threat of a fine, however, the two were induced to postpone their recital of their grievances until after the close of play.

When the last man was out Hogriever When the last man was out Hogrlever advanced to Mannassau and commenced a wordy tirade against the holder of the indicator, and probably would have expressed his feeling even more forcibly had there not been a large bodyguard present for the protection of the unarmed cruiser. Hogrlever was hooted to the coach and given a vociferous hissing off when he left with his players for the city. Mannassau's decisarity foul.

To Get the Official Standing.

There is such a disparity in the standing of the Western League teams, as published by the various newspapers throughout the circuit, that The Journal has requested the Associated Press to get the efficial standing from President Johnson for the use of all the papers. A dispatch from Chicago last night said the standing would be sent out in a day or two.

Let That Summer Suit Wait Until the Weather Is Settled. "Thank goodness, I am rid of those things for a while." So speaks the man who casts aside his heavier clothing to put on his summer raiment. He goes to business on some treacherously fine day, leaving his waistcoat behind him. Toward evening a coolish breeze springs up and of course you know what happens next. The man in thin clothes is a prey to a summer cold, which is more likely to attack the stomach and bowels than the throat and lungs. And the summer cold is every whit as dangerous as the winter cold. It must be immediately combatted or disaster follows soon.

Physicians who do not always prescribe alcohol, order their patients to take a sound pure whiskey for the bowel complaints so prevalent in summer. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, and deserves, the reputation of being especially valuable in these cases. It healthfully stimulates; it checks diarrhoea and its general effect is heartening and uplifting.

lived in this city for the past twenty-eight years, coming here from Ohio in 1871. No physician in this part of the country was more generally respected by his fellow practitioners and the public. A large circle of patients to whom he has ministered with unassuming but great-hearted charity will regret their benefactor's death.

Dr. McDonald was born in York county Pa., January 23, 1835. He studied medicine under Dr. Park Loring in Keaton, O., soon after attaining his majority. He graduated from the University of Michigan and Starling Medical college in Columbus, O. In 1839 he married Miss Mary Shields of Findlay, O. Four children were born to them, of whom one, Joy, died in infancy. The surviving children are Drs. Park L. and Chett McDonald, and Mrs. Letha McDonald

McDonald was intensely patriotic Dr McDonald was intensely patriotic. He joined one of the first Ohio regiments, enlisting the day after Fort Sumier was fired upon. He served throughout the war and then resumed his practice in Ohio, in 1869 he moved from Mount Blanchard. O., to Carrollton, Mo., and practiced through that section of the state for two years, the system in vogue at that early day being very similar to the circuit riding of Methodism.

In NSI Dr. McLionald removed to Kon.

in 1871 Dr. McDonald removed to Kan-sas City and within a few years had built up a lucrative practice. He did an im-mense amount of charitable work in the line of his profession. He pursual the even tenor of a rising physician for thir-teen years before he was induced to run for office.

teen years before he was induced to run for office.

He was always an enthusiastic Republican in politics, but had never taken an active part in any political struggle. He was persuaded, however, as a matter of party duty, rather than prospective reward, to accept the romination for coroner at a time when the normal Democratic majority in the county was about 2,509. His acceptance was looked upon as a great sacrifice on his part of his personal business, but he threw himself into the contest with characteristic energy and made a house to house canvass. To the surprise of everyone he was elected by a substantial majority and served from 1884 to 1886. He was renominated and was actually re-elected, out was counted out, as has since been confessed.

Dr. McDonald was appointed city physician by Mayor Davenport in 1889, and had hardly taken office when an epidemic of smallpox visited the city. Dr. Fee, his predecessor, had attempted to establish a pesthouse in a residence section of the city, but was stopped by injunction proceedings. Dr. McDonald solved the problem by building the pestboat St. George, which was moored to the bank of the river near the Helm brewery, and later near the Miwaukee bridge. Indignant citizens sought to cut the cables which held it, but the ropes were buried twenty feet underground and cut the cables which held it, but the ropes were buried twenty feet underground and the pesiboat stayed. About twenty-five patients were treated and only two or three died, the river breezes having a very beneficial effect upon them. The boat had four wards, and was in use until it was burned, only a few weeks ago.

Dr. McDonald was a member of the Old Men's Association, the Jackson County Medical Association, the Jackson County Medical Association, the Knights of Pythias. He had suffered from Bright's disease for about three years, and was given up a year ago, when he was forced to abandon his practice.

The honorary pallbearers will be chosen from the physicians of the city and the active pallbearers from his old friends in other professions and avocations.

The husband was prosperous and the wife happy, but discord crept into the home. happy, but discord crept into the home. A child was born and the differences were patched up by baby hands, but they crept out again and the result was a separation. The child remained with its mother, and periodically the father, who loved his little one, was permitted to see his child.

Yesterday he went to 1228 McGee street, where his wife lived, but for some unaccountable reason there was an objection to his seeing the child. A third party was present, a man, and he attempted to put Stephenson out of the house. The husband drew a knife, and in the scuffle which followed Mrs. Stephenson threw herself in between the combatants and was cut on the right shoulder and hand. Stephenson gave himself up to Officer McHugh. He was held at No. 3 station, on the Southwest boulevard.

Purses were taken from hundreds of people in were taken from hundreds of people in broad daylight, and there was a perfect epidemic of crime. At the Union depot one day a number of the light-fingered gentry were plying their profession when Officer Jerry Hendershot attempted to arrest one of them. He was set upon and very badly battered up, but among those arrested for the assault was Joe Wilson, and he was given eight years in the penitentiary. Wilson was yesterday arrested by Detectives Sanderson and Schulz at Ninth and Main streets, and was placed in the holdover for investigation. Wilson is about 10 over the country. Originally he entered the ranks of the crooks as a burglar, and soon became one of the finest in the profession. He was a noted Eastern professional, and was mixed up with Ned Lyons and 'Rasty' Martin in the Boyleston bank robbery in Boston years ago, and in the famous Manhattan bank burglary in New York, when hattan bank burglary in New York, when that institution lost about 10,000,000 by this means.

She was Mattle Backus, who uses the two upper floors of this building for a lodging house.

To the rear of these buildings are a number of pens in which are confined poultry of all descriptions. They had become liberated in some manner and about three score of ducks were found calmly swimming about in the six inches of water that was on the floor, joyously quacking congratulations to one another upon an unexpected return to old-time conditions.

ASTOR PALACE FOR SALE.

William Waldorf Would Be Giad to Dispose of His London Residence.

LONDON, June 19 .- A story is current in society here that William Waldorf Astor would be glad to find a purchaser for Clive-den, the famous place on the Thames he purchased for $2,500,000 from the Duke of Westminster. He finds that the relaxing air of the Thames valley does not agree with him, especially in the summer months, when Cliveden is at its loveliest. Acting on the advice of his physicians, he has taken a house for the summer called Danesticki, at Westgate-on-the-Sea, the most bracing point on the North Kentish coast. He in-tends to divide his time between Cliveden and Danesticki, hoping that the bracing breezes of the latter will correct the ener-vating effects of the Cliveden air.
